Atlantic Canada Electronics Stewardship

ELECTRONICS RECYCLING Q&A

Q: What does ACES mean?

A: The Atlantic Canada Electronics Stewardship (ACES) Program is an industry-led electronics recycling program approved by the province of Nova Scotia which is available to all consumers in the province of Nova Scotia.

Q: Why do I have to recycle my unwanted electronics?

A: Unwanted electronics such as televisions; computers, laptops, notebooks, computer monitors, printers, hard-drives, all computer cables and components; corded and cordless telephones, fax and answering machines; audio video playback systems such as radios, CD players, MP3 players, digital cameras, video cameras and camcorders; also clock radios, stereos, speakers, car stereo systems, home theatres in a box and computer scanners are all banned from landfill disposal in Nova Scotia. These products are responsibly recycled through the ACES Program. Electronics contain many toxic chemicals. Keeping these materials out of landfill helps protect our environment.

Q: Can I recycle my cell phone through this program?

A: No. Cell phones and their accessories can be recycled to learn more visit www.recyclemycell.ca or phone 1-888-797-1740.

For more information, visit ACES online at www.ACESstewardship.ca or
